As the mercury plummets, our minds are turning to the mountains (and sumptuous knitwear, ofc). While early-season skiing was largely a no go, we're hopeful that by spring we'll be hitting powder (or at the very least booking our family winter ski trip 2021/22).

To help with your planning, we've rounded up some of our favourite ski hotels, everywhere from Jackson Hole to Courchevel.

Caldera House, Jackson Hole, Wyoming, US

Channelling the glamour of 60s and 70s ski hotels, Caldera House is not your average resort. Up there with our favourite mountainside escapes, the boutique hotel is plotted next to the cable-car station in Teton Village (i.e. the gateway to the Jackson Hole Mountain Resort), offering seclusion and easy access to the slopes all in one. Understated and sophisticated in design, with all the amenities you could dream of, Caldera House is one of the most talked about spots in town. Post-ski session, thaw out in the Club Lounge – a space occupied by guests and members (from pro snowboarders to tech disruptors) – Aperol Spritz in hand.

Rates start from $2,800 per night.

Address: 3275 West Village Drive, Teton Village, WY 83025.

Le Coucou, Meribel, France

Listen in on our roundtable podcast with Founder of Le Coucou, part of Maison Pariente Hotels

Far more colourful than your average Alpine retreat (with not a plaid or check print in sight), Le Coucou is a contemporary take on mountain living. With interiors mastermind Pierre Yovanovitch on board (you'll clock his signature teddy-shaped chairs about the place) what else would you expect? The hotel showcases the slopes at every turn, but for those happy to retreat indoors there's ample to occupy you. Head to Tata Harper Spa for some R&R or book a table at Italian outpost Beefbar for a truffle-filled supper.

Rates start from €590 per night.

Address: 464 Route du Belvedere Meribel, Les Allues, 73550, France.
