If you haven't booked your ski vacation yet, then you're in for a treat because these eight new ski hotels in the French Alps are upping the style game from Megève to Méribel, and they've just opened their doors right in time for the European ski season kick-off.

Le Coucou in Méribel – for the design-savvy

Perched atop the Belvédère in Méribel, new hotel Le Coucou is the place everyone's talking about this ski season thanks to its stylish interiors by artist-designer Pierre Yovanovitch who's behind several residential projects from Paris to the Douro Valley.

Yovanovitch's signature pared-back aesthetic with a fun seventies twist teamed with carefully selected artworks, runs throughout the hotel's 55 rooms (of which 39 are suites), two private chalets, spa and two restaurants.

With a Tata Harper spa, a brand loved by the fashion set, and a flashy Beefbar restaurant (with outposts from Monaco to Dubai), wonderful mountain views, the siblings of Maison Pariente (the family-run company behind Le Coucou) certainly know how to craft a winning formula.
